What is a service animal?

A dog or miniature horse individually trained to help someone with a disability. Emotional support animals are not service animals.

Do I need proof that my animal is a service animal?

No. You don't need proof that your animal is a service animal, and you don't need to describe your disability. We may ask you the following questions:

- Is the animal a service animal required because of a disability?
- What work or tasks are the animal trained to perform?
